Individualized Cancer Management

Welcome Message

Dear Colleague

It gives me a great pleasure to invite you to the 19th Annual Multidisciplinary Scientific Symposium of Kasr El-Eini Center of Clinical Oncology & Nuclear Medicine (NEMROCK) with the title Individualized Cancer Approaches.

The primary objective of this symposium is to provide cancer treating physicians with the most updated clinical and scientific knowledge in order to enable them to develop subsequent practice performance changes so that they can treat their individual patients with individualized approaches.

This will inevitably result in improvement of patient outcome and minimization of treatment side - effects selection of optimal personalized treatment strategies depends on many factors such as cytogenetics , molecular biomarkers, goals of therapy , individual characteristics of each patient, latest clinical and research data .. Etc

Recognized leaders in different fields of oncology will present their own treatment approaches and experience particularly on areas of uncertainty that are still not yet considered standard of care.

The symposium will include also numerous interactive clinical case studies and debate sessions.

I look forward to see you in this important event.
